Clown Table w/ Shelves (ONE LEFT) No longer made

Notice the LARGE clown face on the front and the colored balloons on the sides. The table is finished in attention--getting bright colors. The table measures approx. 36 inches tall, including the casters, 20 inches wide, and 13 inches deep. Three inside shelves plus a soft plush top give, in effect, 4 tables. Those who have seen this table have come under its spell!!! This is the finest and it is a beauty. When the act is over, the table folds flat, and away you go!! There are no pin hinges or bolts to bother with. Made of tough rugged materials, smooth inside and out. OF ALL THE SPECIALIZED TABLES ON THE MARKET TODAY, THIS IS THE MOST PRACTICAL DESIGN! When set up completely with your show inside and HIDDEN FROM VIEW, roll it where you want it. Handgrips are provided on the sides to lift over obstructions. A real beauty! This table makes you a nice guy, not a show off! The clowns eyeballs really move!

There are many - well, a lot of - standards in magic. There's the double lift, the thumbtip, vanishing and appearing canes, the break, milk pitcher, linking rings, cut and restored rope, cups and balls, Han Ping Chien, and more of course. These have been standards for many, many years. The most recent standard is, without question, The Himber Wallet. The Himber Wallet started its march toward standardism shortly after Harry Lorayne's Best of Bill-Fooled (circa 1960) brought it to the attention of the magic world. Then, a few years later, Mr. Lorayne's The Hundred Dollar Book gave it the nudge it needed to topple into that "standard" category. (Harry Lorayne himself has been a standard in magic for a long time!) Since then, the Himber Wallet has been ripped off, knocked off, imitated, emulated - used and used, and revered. Harry's words have been ripped off, knocked off, imitated, emulated - used and used. Well, it's about time it's been done right. And right it's done here! This book really does contain everything you ever want to, or need to, know about the Himber Wallet - its handling, its uniqueness, its capabilities, its possibilities and impossibilities. The idea for The Himber Wallet Book started to germinate in Harry's mind in the late 1980s. Because of his busy schedule, he'd write a bit, put it away, think/write a bit, put it away, and so forth. So the book has been over ten years "in the making." During the last 15 years of Richard Himber's life, he called Harry Lorayne every night between two and four o'clock in the morning. Many of those long conversations devoted quite a bit of time to ideas and effects for the Himber Wallet. The best of those ideas and effects are in this book. Also in this book are many of Harry's own never - before - in - print ideas. His use of the wallet's (built - in) rear slit, his methods for six, eight, twelve or more "possible" predictions (the standard was four up until now) will blow you away, as will his effects using paper clips in conjunction with the wallet. Plus many more Harry Lorayne ideas. Into that same pot or cauldron stir in only the best effects and routines from the above - mentioned books, updated and re - written, some amazing contributions from Harry's friends, Harry Lorayne's fantastic teaching ability and outstanding writing ability, Robert Lorayne's precise and explanatory illustrations, and another standard is born. The Himber Wallet and The Himber Wallet Book will go hand in hand as long as there are Himber Wallets. If you already own a Himber Wallet or intend to ever own one - you simply cannot do without this book. If you read this book and you don't own a Himber Wallet yet - you'll have to rush out to get one!

Run Rabbit Run-MAK (1 left, no longer made)

Run Rabbit Run is the classic 'sucker' effect for any children's show. Magician shows two rabbit hutches connected by a brick wall. The hutches have two doors in front and two in the rear. A wooden panel cut out to look like a 'jack rabbit' is placed in one hutch. Performer tells the audience, "If you see him run over to the other house - don't tell me". The rabbit runs and they 'tell', at full volume. The audience always see him run, but the magician never does. Performer is always behind in the 'rabbit catching' and 'door opening'. When you have just about outsmarted this wooden 'thumper', he peeks out the side of a hutch and then zooms across to the other side. You never can catch him! He's neither 'hare nor there'. The children will go 'bananas'! Finally you open all four doors and Mr. Bunny vanishes completely!! He's found hiding in your pocket, hanging on your coat, or anywhere else you choose. Apparatus is 23" long, 9" high, and the rabbits are 6 1/2" tall. Made entirely of wood, high-gloss lacquered in brilliant colors and rests on a green carpeted base. First class quality. Your spectator will always remember you performing Run Rabbit Run!!!
